

PROGRAMME: B.A. DEGREE COURSE(CBCS)
POLITICAL SCIENCE HONOURS

PROGRAMME SPECIFIC OUTCOME

Political Science course which has been offered to the Political Science Honours students under University of Calcutta are given exposure to a wide ranging subjects, which come under the purview of social Science. The course is so farmed so as to give it a multi-disciplinary character so that the students are given to understand that political issues are closely related and being influenced by different socio-economic factors. The students are not only trained about issues of domestic and International politics, they learn to address all major economic, social and related events and issues like the question of gender equality, human rights, humanitarian problems like forced migration climate change and related politics etc. This academic endeavour enables the student to have a better understanding about the contemporary society and thus they can acquire critical analytical skill for explaining political issues and events. This Academic course motivates the students to go for higher levels of learning and research and make them vocationally competent for any profession they want to pursue in future. Apart from academic career they can opt for important administrative jobs as they are already armed with comprehensive knowledge about the socio-political structure of their society and the administrative set up needed for the development of the country in general. Their objective understanding of the prevailing contemporary socio-political realities would enable them to become extremely successful in the field of media. With the ever expanding world of media all information inputs can be analysed and explained in a methodical manner by a person who is aptly armed with a knowledge base provided by systematic study of Political science.
